Published Every Weekday Afternoon.
 Subscriptions: One year, $3; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.
 Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Entered at the Postoffice at Barre as Second Class Matter.

MONDAY, APRIL 6, 1908.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

4,750

The sixth week—and the last!

Everybody look for the slant-eyed man.

Evelyn Thaw is now in need of those friends which she might have had.

Perhaps your letter that never came last week was one of the 1,033,002 which Uncle Sam couldn't find an owner for.

A slipping of the purse strings and down drops another five millions for our retired professors. Pittsburg steel is still good.

Say not that foot ball is dead in Scotland when 130,000 howling enthusiasts turn out in Glasgow to see the great England-Scotland match.

A casualty list of 242 dead and 4,208 injured looks like a tale from the seat of war, but it's only the round-up of the national athletic results last year.

Pot together Portland's fire losses during the past three months, and the total loss amounts to a conflagration, such as few American cities have been called to meet in a long time.

"What, me afraid? Not a bit!" Whose daughter said it, if not the daughter of the White House? Such a little thing as running a locomotive fifty miles wouldn't make the daughter of a Roosevelt balk.

Fresh evidence of the necessity of enforcement of Vermont's law making it a misdemeanor to promiscuously distribute all kinds of medical samples is furnished by the death of a little girl in Holyoke, Mass., from eating some sample pills.

A Vermont newspaper man who wrote and distributed sixty "stories" in four days and nights while promoting a political campaign as press agent, is suing his employer for "brain fog." He figures it at $304.25. The verdict should establish an interesting precedent.—Boston Transcript.

Haul him out into the limelight. Let's see the Vermont newspaper man whose stories brought $5,000 per. Such startling information ought to be more explicit. Such brilliance should not be wasted on the political desert.

Shoes are ahead this month in importance to your health, and we're ahead in quality.

Congressman Heflin is getting the rebound of that bullet, which struck the negro's head, it returning in the shape of a $20,000 suit. "Jim-crow" lines will obtain in the trial, for the aggrieved negro decided that negro attorneys were good enough for him, and has engaged four.

James F. Hooker of Brattleboro meant to start with the procession as he publicly announced last week that he would vote for Fletcher Proctor for senator provided the people of Brattleboro were good enough to elect him (Hooker) as representative this fall. In fact, Hooker got a little ahead of the drum major.

PROCTOR NOT A CANDIDATE.

The refusal of Governor Proctor to permit the use of his name this fall in connection with the legislature's election of a United States senator to succeed his father, the late Redfield Proctor, removes one of the two most likely "possibilities"—perhaps the most likely—for the office. It is conceded on all sides that Governor Proctor and ex-Governor C. S. Page were by far the most acceptable of any persons named for the place; and the former's popularity and fine record as governor gave him a very strong foundation for support, had he cared to use it at this time. His decision not to be a candidate this fall indicates that he is actuated by a high purpose, in that he refuses to allow any encroachment on his duties as governor and that he will complete his term in that capacity, untrammelled in any way. His determination is regretted by a great many people who will, however, recognize and applaud his faithfulness to duty.

THE RAILROAD STEPPING-STONE.

The Central Vermont railroad continues to be a stepping-stone for ambitious railroad officials. General Freight Agent Robert L. Burnap is the latest. His appointment, moreover, is an indication that a man can start at the bottom and have a fair chance of working up, as Burnap began in the railroad business after graduating from Dartmouth college by becoming clerk in the Ogdensburg office, and successively filling the positions of time-keeper, assistant dock foreman, clerk in the division freight agent's office, clerk in the office of the commercial agent in Wall street, traveling freight agent, commercial agent, general freight agent. And Burnap is comparatively a youngster in the business at that, having left Dartmouth in 1894, the same year that he entered railroading. His promotion to become assistant general freight agent of the big Grand Trunk system is another step upward, and his selection for the place is said to place him in line for other and more responsible offices.

CURRENT COMMENT.

A Successful Vermonter.

One of the most successful Vermonters of the day is Gen. Charles K. Darling who has just resigned the position of United States marshal for Massachusetts to accept that of clerk of the United States court. The salary of the former office is $5,000, while that of the latter is $3,500, with fees that largely increase the amount.

Gen. Darling is a son of that well-known Vermontor J. K. Darling and was born in Corinth in 1864. He was graduated from Dartmouth in 1885 and then entered the employ of the Fitchburg railroad, and later the Old Colony and Cheshire railroads. During his railroad career he plunged into newspaper work, and later studied law, graduating from the Boston university law school in 1895. Three years later he was instructor in criminal law in Boston university. In 1897 he joined the Sons of Veterans, and two years later became a member of the 6th regiment, afterward rising to be its commander.

Gen. Darling served in the Spanish war with distinction. He did excellent service in Porto Rico, and was promoted to the colonelcy of the regiment, an honor for which he did not even have to seek. His promotion to the rank of general is of comparatively recent date. He had been United States marshal for nine years.—Burlington News.

JOY JURY DISAGREED.

Nineteen Hours' Deliberation Caused a Death of Jurymen.

Rutland, April 6.—After deliberating 19 hours, the jury in the county court case of State vs. John K. Joy of this city, a liquor dealer, returned a verdict Saturday declaring the respondent not guilty of selling intoxicating liquor to a minor. Joy was charged with furnishing Levi Pratt, a Black River academy student, with a quart of whiskey. The long hangout of the Joy jury caused a scarcity of jurors, and when an attempt was made to spancel a jury for the case of State vs. Proprietor Charles B. Webster of the Bonaparte house, Castleton, the sheriff department had to scour half the town for talesmen. Webster holds a license of the first class and is charged with selling by bottle and also selling on Sunday. The court took a recess for over Sunday before much evidence had been introduced in the case.

Count Your Money

and see how much more you have today than you had one year ago. Our ledger contains many accounts with balances ranging from $20 to $500 begun with a dollar or two. You can do as well if you will follow two rules: "Begin," "Keep at it."

PEOPLES NATIONAL BANK

Worthen Block, Barre, Vt.

OPEN MONDAY EVENINGS FROM 7 TO 8 O'CLOCK.

EAST MONTPELIER

Wedding bells will ring in town this week.

George Cutler spent Sunday in Middlesex, visiting his sister, Mrs. Cooley.

Harley Martin and Stanley Farnham went to-day to Bethel to deliver a span of horses.

Maud Wylie has returned to Williams-town after visiting her aunt, Mrs. Whitteher.

J. F. Robbins was taken seriously ill with heart trouble Saturday morning, and is not yet able to be out.

Dr. Stickney of Barre was in town this morning to see Mrs. O. B. Field, who is ill with heart trouble.

Mrs. Harrison Mack of East Calais is caring for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Mack, who has been sick, for two weeks.

Rev. W. W. Laite of the People's church of Montpelier preached in the Evangelical church in this village Sunday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Corbie and Miss Katherine Mathieson of Barre were guests at the home of A. G. Whitteher last Wednesday and Thursday.

Merle Clark was home over Sunday from Barre and with his father and brother, Lynn, went to Calais and ate new sugar with relatives.

Ray Tillotson and his sister, Miss Beulah, were in Barre Sunday evening to attend the holiness revival services in progress there. They enjoyed the preaching of Rev. E. S. Taylor very much.

The Universalist society has elected L. W. Sibley and C. S. Dudley to engage a pastor for the church. Since last fall there has been no service at the church, as the repairs to the building took so much money that there was none left to pay for a preacher.

JINGLES AND JESTS

A Misanthrope.

(Some lines on visiting a popular picture exhibition.)
 Aid a mere male man, ye Graces!
 I have fairly lost my nerve!
 After such a show of faces
 Some condolence I deserve.

I have just been contemplating
 Portraits of "Fair Women" (sic),
 Which parenthesis is stating
 Just what overcame me quick!

Some were fair—"would be" invidious
 Specifying each by name;
 One or two the most fastidious
 Might perhaps as bolles proclaim.

But the rest—it were ungainly
 My emotions to describe,
 Impolite to utter plainly
 Criticism of such a tribe.

Could the shade of Paris grapple
 With this bevy up to date,
 He'd to each a sour crab apple
 As a prize adjudicate!

Still they haunt me with their clever,
 Ugly, haggard, wicked traits,
 If you want to gasp, endeavor
 On this galaxy to gaze!

Poet and Painter.

Poet and painter—they both are the same.
 What low minded Philistine says that they ain't?
 A poem's a picture in phrases of flame,
 A picture's a poem that's written in paint!

 "Millions of better people found out they didn't have to," responded the importuned.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SIREN AND SONS.

Enterprise.
 A Bladenburg merchant was dosing in his store one day when a little girl with a pitcher appeared in the doorway and asked for a quart of molasses. The storekeeper yawned, stretched himself, half opened his eyes and then in an injured tone said, "Ain't there nobody in Bladenburg that sells molasses but me?"

She Was.

He met her in the hallway dark
 And very promptly kissed her.
 Then answered to her haughty glance,
 "I thought you were my sister!"

He found that night that he was right.
 His love, alas, had kissed her.
 For when he asked her for her hand
 She said she'd be a sister!

Not Exclusive.

Nellis (aged five)—Our family is awfully exclusive. Is yours? Bessie (aged four)—No, indeed! We haven't anything to be ashamed of.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Those who know the road best sometimes lose their way.

M. E. Reist of Mannheim, Pa., has voted at every election, without exception, since 1853.

Tillman Ford of Salem, Ore., provided in his will that gold watches to cost $125 each should be given to thirty-nine intimate friends.

Samuel Yourison of Fairton, N. J., agrees with President Roosevelt in his opposition to race suicide. The little boy who recently arrived at his home is No. 14.

W. G. Conrad, the Montana millionaire who has been mentioned among Democratic candidates for the nomination of vice president, came within two votes of beating William A. Clark for a seat in the United States senate.

William Renner of Selinsgrove, Pa., a veteran of the civil war, celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday recently. Mr. Renner declares that if the country called for his services today he would shoulder his musket and march to the front.

Otis Skinner, the actor, recently preached in the Mount Vernon Universalist church. His nephew, Rev. Charles R. Skinner, is pastor of the church, and his father, grandfather and great-grandfather were preachers of the denomination.

In Sangerville, Me., resides a family in which five generations in the male line are living. They are Moses Carr, ninety-eight years; Frank S. Carr, seventy-four; Fred H. Carr, fifty-one; Omar F. Carr, twenty-three, and Oden Moses Carr, the baby.

The London Spectator, a most conservative weekly newspaper, seriously suggests John Burns, president of the local London government board and noted labor leader, for the highest post in the cabinet—namely, the chancellorship of the exchequer—in the event Mr. Asquith finding it necessary to resign the chancellorship to become premier.

Little Things.

Life is made up not of great moments of duties, but little things, which smiles and kindnesses, which obligations given and received, what wins and preserve the heart in secure comfort.—Sir H. Dwyer.
